GOOD CROWD ....

The downtown mall seated or parked upwards to 500 people at a time, coming and going, for about 2 hours while the Rhine Steiners played an oompah band concert Monday night.

The group is heading for the New Braunfels Wurstfest in October, according to one spokesman, and is getting invitations from other towns like Fredricksburg for an appearance similar to Folk Fete here.

The crowd enjoyed the summertime concert, which was like something right out of a history book, telling of times much more leisurely and removed from the incongruities of the 1970's.

Two Cameron teams won games out of town Tuesday night. The Cameron Little League Indians won 3-2 over a Belton club and were playing at presstime in the second round against a Killeen team at the Killeen tournament.

If the Indians go four straight in Killeen to win district, they will be eligible for the state tournament at Athens. One Cameron club, the Little League Cardinals, a few years ago finished third in the state competition.

The Pony League Blue Jays won in Temple Tuesday night and were headed for district playoffs in that competition.

115-115-115

Extension classes from TJC in Cameron Schools are scheduled to begin September 3, but pre-registration ends Monday, August 5.

Courses must have a minumum of 10 students to be conducted and include:

Principles of refrigeration, shorthand, beginning typing, business and business English, economice, composition, English, literature, fundamentals of fire protection, federal government, U. S. history to 1865, introduction to law enforcement, college algebra, medical terminology, introductions to medical science and management, general psychology, speech, among others.

Maybe there's a course you need.

LL Indians Win

Cameron's Little League Indians took their first game 3-2 in district play Tuesday night at Killeen, with their second game played Wednesday night. They defeated the Belton Indians.

Scoring runs were Ronnie Henley, Martin Luecke and Allen Sapp. Leading batters were Ricky Gaskey, 2 for 3 and Timmy Mitchan, 2 for 3. Steven Vrazel pitched a 5 hitter and struck out 7. Mitchan was catcher.

Costs Decrease Housing

CONCERT ON MALL - A good crowd local spectators was on hand Monday night on the new mall for an evening concert presented by the Rhine Steiners, local group formed to play at this year's Folk Fete. Sitting in lawn chairs, on mall benches, and on the ground, listeners enjoyed toe-tapping numbers despite the late-day heat.

Six Permits Issued For New Homes

Increased construction costs and current high interest rates have put the skids to much of the country's housing starts and the same is true in Cameron, where only six permits for new homes were issued here since April.

Building permits for the period from April through July total $427,772, with permits for a new county jail and an apartment complex raising the total.

The jail permit was for $155,000 and the apartments which are being built on North Fannin some $75,000.

Remainder of the permits was for remodeling, residential alterations, new homes, additions to homes and businesses, repairs to homes and businesses and one for a mobile home.

Permits for remodeling totaled $10,485; for residential alterations, $5,500; additions to homes and businesses, $19,795; repairs to homes and businesses $6,350; new homes, $144,642; and mobile home $8,000.

E. A. Bigbee, city code inspector, whose office issues the permits, said housing starts are at least 50 per cent down this year, reflecting high costs and high interest rates.

Bigbee said building on Farmers Home Administration insured loans are cut by at least 75 percent. Interest rates for FHA loans are at 9 1/2 to 9 3/4 percent, Bigbee said. He added that he did not know what interest rates other lenders are charging.

Band Meeting Set

All interested students and their parents will meet Monday, August 5 at 7 p.m. in the Yoe Band Hall for signup in the beginner band program.

Any student interested in starting in either junior high or high school band should attend the meeting, band director Jerry Bartley said.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss which instrument will be best suited for the individual. Any beginners wishing to play the drums will take a rhythm and coordination test to determine who will qualify. Only four persons will be selected to play the percussion instruments, Bartley said.

Tuesday, August 6, parents are asked to come to the band hall to purchase an instrument for the starting student. Bledsoe Music Co. of Austin will handle the horn display.

Bartley said, "I have known this company for several years and have complete trust in its brands which I have used for many years. The brands of instruments which will be displayed are of top quality and parts are available for repair if needed later."

All instruments purchased at the display will be handled through a "rental-purchase" plan. The parent rents the horn for a trial period of three months. Then, if the student is progressing well, a continuing contract of 12 more payments will pay for the horn. The first three months rent from the trial period also applies to purchase of the horn.

Time for the come and go instrument drive will be from 6 to 10 p.m. Persons interested in any phase of the Cameron band program are invited to any one or both meetings August 5 at 7 p.m. and August 6 at 6 p.m.

Local Schools Open August 26

School Supt. Buddy Dulin has announced starting dates for the school term with teachers in-service training beginning August 19 and the first day of school for the children on August 26.

A short school day will be in effect during the early part of the school year when the weather is hot, Supt. Dulin said. Hours will be announced before school starts. The students in Ben Milam (grades K-2) will be dismissed at 2:30 p.m. for this school year.

Dulin said selection of the school faculty is nearing completion and the custodial staff is busy completing the summer maintenance and cleaning.

On August 12 Coach Ed Cauley and his staff will begin workouts for the football aspirants. "The Yoeman are expecting a great year," Dulin said, "and the school is expecting the usual fine support from the community."

Plan A special education will be in operation for the first time in Cameron this year. Joyce Bayless of Rockdale is the supervisor of the Milam - Burleson counties unit.

Parents are urged to get immunization requirements completed for children beginning school for the first time.

Principals of the various schools will release information to The Herald concerning registration of students. All students new to the school this year will be expected to report for orientation a few days before the general registration, Dulin said.

Breakin On Salem Road Nets Suspect

A Cameron man has been charged with breaking and entering and is out of jail on $2,000 bond following an incident on the Salem road late Saturday.

Sheriff Carl Black said Carlos P. Garcia, 21, of Cameron was charged in the breakin of H. J. (Chick) Folschinsky's home on the Salem road.

According to the sheriff, Mrs. Folschinsky was in one room and her husband was asleep in another room when she heard someone in the house. She went into the bedroom and found Garcia poking her husband with an umbrella to wake him up. Folschinsky caught Garcia and held his head between his knees and told his wife to call the police.

Garcia had entered through a bedroom window. He was believed to have been accompanied by one or more persons who fled the scene in a red car.

Police arrested Garcia and he was placed in county jail before being released on bond.

Library Open House Tuesday

An open House at the Cameron Public Library Tuesday, August 6, will feature a display of local arts and crafts, and autograph party with Mrs. Vance Werner autographing her book on early Cameron, and a used book sale.

The Open House, part of the Friends of the Library membership drive, is set for 4 to 6 p.m. in the library reception room. Co-hostesses are Mrs. Dan McDaniel and Mrs. Jack Tumlinson.

Mrs. Werner's book, "A History of Buildings and People of 'Old Town' Cameron", is a limited edition recording of buildings in the Urban Renewal area of Cameron and some of the events and personalities of early day Camern. It started with an interest of her late husband, Emanuel Werner, who wanted a record of a building his father had owned on the northeast corner of the present Cameron mall.

"I checked courthouse records about that building and this led to recording information on other buildings in the downtown area," Mrs. Werner said. Courthouse records were sketchy and to fill in details she interviewed people who remembered "how it was back then." Before the book was completed she had interviewed more than 75 early residents, some by correspondence.

She said she didn't intend to write a book, "just record the information for our grandsons," But as material piled up with many accompanying photographs and with the urging of townspeople who knew about the project and wanted a copy, the book took shape.

Mrs. Werner, a retired elementary school teacher, said she encountered considerable conflicting information but "when three or more people agreed on a name or location or event I included it." Although the project was a large one, she said she was glad she had made the effort. "At least 5 of the people who provided some of my most valued information from their memories of early days are now gone," she said, "and that information would have been almost impossible to find."

In addition to the autograph party, plans for the Library Friends Open House include an exhibit of local arts and crafts with Mrs. Maxine Fail and Mrs. Mary Tucker in charge of the display. Used books at bargain prices will also be on sale with Mrs. Kenneth Willy and Mrs. Ernest Dodd in charge.

AUTOGRAPH PARTY - Mrs. Vance Werner will autograph her book "A History of Buildings and People of 'Old Town' Cameron" at the Friends of the Cameron Library open house Tuesday, August 6, from 4 to 6 p.m. in the reception room of the Cameron Public Library.

County Girls Attend District 4-H Congress

"The time of their lives," is the way Tami Gray and Suzanne Sims, both of Thorndale, described the 1974 Texas 4-H Congress held in Dallas last week.

Tami is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gray and Suzanne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Sims.

Tami and Suzanne were selected to represent Milam and were part of a group of 50 4-H'ers who represented District 10. While in Dallas they stayed at the Baker Hotel.

The opening assembly and get-acquainted dance was held on Tuesday and on Wednesday morning the group of approximately 500 youngsters listened to speakers on a better understanding of careers in the "world of work." Mini-groups and educational tours made up the rest of the day's program.

That night they went to a dinner theater and Bob Cummings was the star. Thursday's program brought more speakers and a district meeting on the community. That afternoon the District 10 group toured Six Flags.

The day was topped off with a Congress Ball. Friday brought a Congress breakfast, a closing assembly, and lots of tears and goodbyes. This was a trip the girls will never forget.

School Board To Meet

Trustees of the Cameron school district will meet Monday evening August 12 at 8 p.m. for the purpose of adopting a school budget for the 1074-75 school term. The meeting is open to the public.

Firemen Answer Call

Volunteer firemen were called to a grass fire Sunday on Highway 36 three miles west of Cameron. They were also called out Monday night when a flat on a tandem truck overheated and caught fire on Highways 77 and 36. The fire damaged the truck slightly.

SUMMERTIME FUN was the word from Tami Gray, left, and Suzanne Sims, both of Thorndale, when they returned Friday from several days in Dallas attending the 1975 Texas 4-H Congress. They were representing Milam County and were part of a group of 50 4-H'ers attending from District 10.

Junior College In CISD...

We urge Cameron area residents to consider the courses being assured by Temple Junior College through the Cameron Independent School District.

Deadline for registration for these extension courses is Monday, August 5. Students interested should contact TJC by mail or telephone 773-9961 to get preregistration forms which must be returned to TJC, according to Dr. Harry C. Farrell, dean of the college.

The courses range from principles of refrigeration to fundamentals of fire protection and speech, 20 courses plus non-credit in defensive driving and real estate fundamentals.

People in this area should understand this is the first offering of college courses in Cameron in the history of Cameron public schools.

A few individual courses may have been offered, but never fully staffed courses of minimum 10 students each..

Your Herald urges students to enroll in this effort to bring a 14-grade system to CISD. This is possibly the most progressive self-development available in Cameron since public schools opened here.

Large numbers of students commute. Perhaps this will save critical mileage and expense for a student who needs to work here or live at home in the Milam area.

Remember the deadline: Monday, August 5. Classes are scheduled to begin September 3 and end December 17.

Incomprehensible....

A Watergate grand jury has indicted John B. Connally on five counts.

Jake Jacobsen, a former Connally associate, was indicted on one count of giving a bribe in connection with two $5,000 payments in behalf of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., to the former Secretary of Treasury.

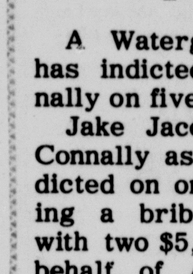
The former Texas governor and Kennedy and Nixon cabinet member denies the grand jury allegations, friends and brother Merrill vehemently denouncing the atmosphere in the District of Columbia which brought about charges of accepting a bribe (2), perjury (2) and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The matter extends from allegations that Connally helped influence the President to raise federal milk prices in March, 1971. The indictment says Jacobsen paid the two $5,000 payments to Mr. Connally about May 14 and Sept. 24, 1971.

The daily press has discussed a trade-out between Watergate prosecuters and Jacobsen for testimony against the former three-term Texas governor. Jacobsen also was under indictment in Texas on involvement in misapplying $825,000 in a San Angelo savings association.

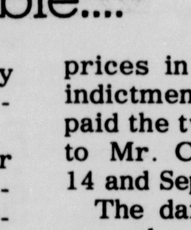
The British would call this a "sticky wicket." For a man of Connally's proven administrative ability, it is tragic. And the indictment, though proven false in a court trial, will eliminate Mr. Connally as a candidate for president.

The fallout from Watergate is incomprehensible.



"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP



(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Senator Abraham Ribicoff (EConn.)"... The legislation (Consumer Protection Agency, S. 707) is about to be considered once again in the sSenate...

"The CPR will not be just another large Government bureaucracy seeking to regulate how people live and work...It will operate only as an advocate with no regulatory power...

"It cannot force any agency to take any action, nor force any company to do business in a certain way..

"As the monority views concede, the agency will seek chiefly to assure that consumers interests are heard in major Federal regulatory proceedings...

"The CPA will have the power to appeal in court final agency decisions affecting the c sumer...It can subpena no one nor can it inspect the records of any business.

"The primary purpose of this bill will be to increase advocacy of consumer interests in agency proceedings substantially affecting consumer interests..."

Senator Strom Thurmond (S.C.) " ... I am greatly alarmed by S.707 and the unprecedented powers it would bestow on a Federal agency if it were enacted. Creating a massive intergovernmental bureaucracy is not going to service the average citizen with a legitimate consumer complaint, In my opinion, the planned Consumer Protection Agency if it were enacted. Cre- can only grow and grow until the national paperwork load is pandemic.

"In my opinion, all that paperwork will come to no action since 'the CPA has no authority to impose any resolution of such complaints on any person or government agency...

"Every agency of the Federal Government was created to serve in the best interests of all the citizens..

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

It should be noted that the bill states," to assure that consumer interests are heard in MAJOR Federal regulatory prc eedings," It is unlikely that an individuals complaint regarding a defective appliance for example, would be heard by the Consumer Protection Agency.

Budget Planners Favor Pay Raises

Legislative budget planners recommended nearly $480 million in pay raises and fringe benefits for 116,000 state employees next year.

General revenue cost of the package (which includes a 23.8 per cent salary boost for lower-scale personnel and higher travel allowances) is about $285 million.

Legislative Budget Board gave its blessing to the cost - of - living catch-up proposals to help planning of the 1976-77 appropriations bill.

Assuming the entire plan is approved by the legislature, more than 90 per cent of the anticipated general revenue surplus will be used on compensation and benefits of 116,000 state workers.

One budget executive conceded the action "placed a little strain" on Gov. Dolph Briscoe's pledge of no new taxes next year, although the comptroller's estimate of a $315 million surplus is viewed as conservative. Further, existing revenues are expected to generate much more money next fiscal period than they do today.

Many budget requests are running ahead of present appropriations by staggering amounts.

Examples are the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Corrections, the Health Department and Texas Youth Council.

LBB took a sobering look at some of the requests at its last meeting.

Not satisfied with salary raises delayed until next year, state employees said they still want a special legislative session to get inflation relief now.

CITIES LOSE MONEY — A group of Texas cities got the sad news last week that they will not get federal grants they requested to build sewage treatment plants.

About 204 projects were tabled because of a $27 million federal fund deficit this fiscal year.

A total of $142.1 million in FY '75 money is available to Texas. But Texas Water Quality Board's "project list" includes $169.1 million worth of projects.

Projects are carried on the TWQB list in line with how important they are to water pollution control.

FOOD CRUNCH NEXT — A "food crunch" could make the energy crisis seem mild by comparison, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

A sudden world demand for better quality food is driving grocery prices up again, White stated, and causing Americans to compete with the world markets for their own products.

U.S. producers can keep up with the demand if they have time to gear up, White stated. He predicted the United Nations World Food Conference in Rome next November can "make or break" U.S. agriculture. He warned against commitment to "specific deals . . .which would handicap our own agriculture marketing system."

COURTS SPEAK — The Texas Supreme Court held the Dallas Episcopal Diocese and bishop cannot be held responsible for an ex-priest's alleged alienation of an Irving housewife's affections.

In other opinions, the Court concluded:

- A Pasadena civil service commission order dismissing a police patrolman for insubordination should be dismissed.
- A case involving San Marcos city council's power to set rates for electrical power sold by Lower Colorado River Authority within the city should be heard.
- A moving and storage company that handed furniture and other belongings to the wrong person without a proper warehouse receipt must pay the owner for his loss.
- The state has no special right to refuse answers to questions in a suit filed by a prison inmate as the result of losing an eye due to a basketball injury.
- Court of Criminal Appeals ordered new trials for two Del Rio men on marijuana possession charges because of an illegal search of their residence.

FACILITY FATE UNKNOWN — Future use of Gatesville State School is undecided, according to Texas Youth Council Chairman W. Forrest Smith of Dallas.

Enrollment has dropped sharply since 18-year-olds and children in need of supervision were removed. Possible uses mentioned are as a welfare facility, Department of Corrections unit and continuation as a school for boys, Smith said.

AG OPINIONS — Atty. General John Hill invalidated an appropriations bill rider requiring state agencies to insure equal employment opportunity for all through special plans for ending discrimination.

He said he favors such a program, but it must be established by separate law. The ruling does not affect federal legal requirements prohibiting discrimination in jobs.

In other recent opinions, Hill held:

- A teacher's eligibility for sick leave depends on applicable rules and regulations and is not affected by concurrent eligibility for leave of absence. Maximum leave of absence for temporary disability may not be set at less than 180 calendar days.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor;

I don't know if you've noticed it but a pattern seems to be forming by lawyers associated with the Washington mess when they get caught, convicted and disbarred.

They all take up writing.

It's a fact, Agnew, McGruder, Colson, Dean, and numerour others, having lost their law licenses, have now taking up writing and you get the impression that a first requirement for pursuing this literary profession is disbarment. First you get a law license, then you get a government job, get convicted of perjury, then get disbarred, and you're all set, with publishers standing by offering you a contract. For beginning writers however I'd like to point out there are certain details you have to respect and pitfalls to avoid if you want to become a full-fledged writer.

For example, take the third step mentioned above, perjury. You can't lose your license and get disbarred just for lying. You've got to get caught lying. Becoming a writer is not as easy as falling off a log, you know . Furthermore, you can't be just anything and get caught lying and become a writer. Congressmen have proved that over and over. Editors of some of the biggest newspapers in the country have tried it for years and they've never become writers. Avoid such pitfalls

My advice to young people wanting to become writers and have their books published is to forget them English courses, get into law school, pass the bar exam even if you have to hire somebody to do it for you, and head for Washington. Better hurry, though. At the rate the convictions and the books are piling up the fad may die out and another book by another Washington felon will be a glut on the market and you might have to just stay in jail reading Pilgrim's Progress.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Middle Of Summer Is Time To Plan Fall Garden

Although it's the middle of summer, that's the time to start getting things in shape for your fall vegetable garden, says a vegetable specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Gardening came on like gangbusters this spring, and many home gardeners enjoyed the sweet taste of success, " notes Sam Cotner. "But for most areas of Texas the gardening season continues the year round. That means getting the land prepared and getting transplants started as soon as possible for a fall garden."

According to the Texas A&M University System Specialist, many popular vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, pole beans, potatoes, okra and squash can be planted during July and August.

Also, the so-called "winter" vegetables such as broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, greens, parsley and carrots can be painted at this time for early harvesting. Later plantings of these cold-hardy crops will supply fresh vegetables well into winter.

First of all, get the land into good shape. If a garden was planted this spring and fertilizer was applied, little if any additional fertilizer will be needed before fall planting.

For new gardens, Cotner recommends applying two to three pounds of a complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 per 100 spuare feet and working it into the soil. If plants make slow growth, a light amount of fertilizer may be applied between the rows and watered into the soil.

"Of major importance for a successful fall garden is an adequate water supply," emphasizes Cotner. "Since planting is done during hot weather, sufficient water is needed for germination and early growth. Light waterings three to four times a week may be necessary to keep the soil from drying out and crusting. Water stress during early growth of plants can reduce later yields."

Since transplants of recommended varieties of vegetables may be hard to find at local nurseries, the specialist suggests buying seed and growing your own transplants. Four to five weeks should be allowed from the time of seeding to setting the young plants out in the garden.

"Transplanting is a good practice in the fall." points our Cotner, "since it allows the seed to be started in areas sheltered from high temperatures and drying winds."

Of course, as with all gardens, a wary eye must be kept for such problems as weeds, insects and diseases. However, Cotner contends that the quality and flavor of many vegetables grown in the fall are superior to those from spring gardens.

So, even though the weather is still hot, get an early jump on your fall garden, advises the specialist.

FARM and CITY

ETC, ETC

By Johnny Watkins

The day of the Environmentalist is here. If you don't believe it, try burning some brush on your place and see how long it takes for one of those boys with long sideburns and pumps on to drive up to your place in a long black air conditioned car that has just swallowed the hose out of a gas pump.

You have violated the law. Now when they pass these laws I don't know they passed.

Let me give you an example. Over in Falls County they have just had three sieges. They can be enumerated in 5 words. Low cattle prices, drought and anthrax.

The other day they were burning these old diseased cattle like mad using diesel, old casings and cross ties when up drives this long low slung limousine and out pope sideburns and says, "you're violating the law burning those cattle."

Now one law says you gotta burn these cattle within 24 hours and environmentalist says you can't burn cattle. In resloving this contradiction of red-mouth politicians laws, they finally agreed that you could get a permit to burn your anthraxed cattle.

Let me give you another one. The House of Representatives in Washington has just defeated the Land Use Planning Bill by a very small vote. Up turns the EPA with the word that they don't need a law passed, they have the authority now to plan your farm or ranch without any laws being passed.

So the head of the EPA (Environmental protection agency) hires a bunch of pump wearing people and they are going to start planning your farm or ranch.

I know some crusty old ranchers that they had better not start on or that will be the end of planning.

Ag Production, Income Influence Prices Of Land

Does agricultural production and income influence the price of Texas farm land?

According to Kenneth E. Graeber, economist in real estate for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, it does.

"Despite the varied reasons for purchasing land, such as recreational use, inflation hedge, prestige and speculation, and an apparent discrepancy between land prices and productivity, agricultural income has tremendous impact upon the value of certain lands," says Graeber.

"Prices of crop land, which has little aestetic value, are more closely related to agricultural productivity than the more appealing wooded and grazing lands," notes Graeber.

He points out that productivity and profits are influenced by the soil type, crop hazards such as drouths, floods, insects and disease, the farm layout, location with respect to markets and roads, and other improvemnts. ads, and other improvements. In addition to these physical factors of productivity, management strongly influences yields and profits.

"However, productivity and management generate only part of gross farm income; price represents the remainder," says the Texas A&M University System economist. "In 1973 agricultural commodity prices began to rise, and the returns to land encouraged land pruchases by full-time agricultural producers who wanted to expand. In addition, investors found their holding costs reduced, thus encouraging additional investments. The result was a substantial increase in land demand and prices."

Net income and net returns to land are considered important in determining land value. Net income and net reutrns are dependent upon productin costs, which include operating, fixed and management costs. Thus agricultural investors must know the costs for major crops withing their area to aid investment decisions, points out the economist. These data are available through the country Extension office.

To evaluate agricultural land values, Graeber suggests "capitalizing" the net income to land from agricultural production by dividing the annual net to land by an appropriate capitalization rate. This rate is normally determined by the market, with many farm land owners historically accepting about a 4.5 per cent return on their land values. The capitalization rate must be determined by each potential investor.

What can you afford to pay for good crop land?

According to Graeber, there is no one answer. "Not only does it vary with land, management, yield and price expectations, but it also varies with the method of financing, sources of outside capital , expectations of future values, rate of return required and even the tax strategy for the investor.

"However, by considering only one specific case at a time and taking into accoun the aforementioned factors, you can pretty well estimate what you can afford to pay for the land from an agricultural standpoint," notes Graeber.

Lone Star Industries Earning Up

Net income of Lone Star Industries Inc . rebounded sharply in the second quarter from the first quarter seasonal loss to nearly match the second quarter record set last year, it was reported today by John R. Kringel, president and chief executive officer.

Sales for the quarter ended June 30 were $180.6 million compared to $181.1 million in the same period last year. The 1973 quarter included $10.8 million of sales from cement plants since transferred to Citadel Cement Corporation, a joint venture not included in current sales data.

JAPAN'S SHIPS

In the 1630's when Japan had shut itself off from the world, an imperial decree forbade the building of large ocean-worthy ships. Today Japan builds almost half of the world's tonnage , or more than 20 times United States production, National Geographic says.

Team Foods To Give Proteins

Low cost meat group foods can be combined with cereal products to give added protein while saving money, one authority pointed out.

She's Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Low cost cuts of meat, poultry and fish may be combined with cereal products such as rice and pastas. Or try combining milk, cheese, dry beans, peas, or nuts with cereals," the specialist advised.

There are several points about protein and good nutrition that the specialist suggested keeping in your mind as you shop.

--Proteins are made up of amino acids, some of which are essential to man.

--Vegetable-derived sources of protein are generally less expensive than animal sources, but contain incomplete protein.

--That means some of the essential amino acids are low or missing in vegetable proteins.

--Animal proteins have all the essential amino acids.

--The body uses protein best when foods are teamed to give all the essential amino acids.

Proper Saw Eases Work

Remodeling or do-it-yourself projects require the right tools to get the job done quickly and properly. Among these are five types of handsaws, each with its special purposes.

The most familiar saws are the crosscut and ripsaw, similar except for the size of their teeth. The crosscut, for sawing across the grain, has eight to ten teeth per inch. The ripsaw, for cutting with the grain, has five and a half to six teeth to the inch.

These two and a keyhole saw should be adequate for most jobs. A keyhole saw has a narrow pointed blade for cutting slight curves or a hole in a larger piece of wood.

For finished cabinet work or moldings, a backsaw or coping saw may be necessary. A backsaw has a thin, fine-toothed rectangular blade that can be used in a miter box for cutting angles.

A coping saw has a narrow, fine-toothed blade held in a U-shaped steel frame, and is used for cutting rounded patterns in plywood or thin boards.

Vegetables Growing ... Cattle Advisors' Names ... Brucellosis Again ... Screwworms Increasing ... Cotton Report Awaited

COMMERCIAL VEGETABLES mean around $140,000,000-$150,000,000 a year to the Texas economy, and tasty, healthful foods for everyone. Only California and Florida rank higher in commercial vegetable growing, although Texas ranked first in 1972 in harvested acres of watermelons, cabbage, and spinach. The Rio Grande Valley and Winter Garden areas are the biggest producers of vegetables but there are many commercial vegetables grown all over the State. As an indication, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service estimates the following acreages for harvest this year: 55,000 acres of watermelons, 4,500 acres of tomatoes, 5,400 acres of onions, and 1,000 acres of cucumbers. Of course other vegetables, like green peppers, lettuce, carrots, turnip greens, spinach, and cantaloupes are grown in Texas.

THREE TEXANS are on the new Cattle Industry Advisory Committee announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. They are: James W. Campbell of Pampa, Tobin Armstrong of Armstrong, and Harold D. Florence Jr. of Dumas. The large committee is supposed to provide counsel on cattle production, marketing, international trade, economics outlooks; but will meet only as needed when called by the chairman, Dr. Richard L. Feltner, assistant secretary for marketing and consumer services.

TALKING ABOUT the suffering cattle industry, cattle growers in Freestone, Leon, and Milam Counties face more brucellosis testing before shipping beef or dairy breeding cattle. Those three counties, and some counties in Oklahoma and South Dakota, have been taken off the modified-certified brucellosis areas. Navarro, Wood and Cherokee have been restored to the modified-certified brucellosis areas. A part of Bailey County, Texas has been placed under quarantine for psoroptic cattle scabies after an infestation was found in a feedlot late in June.

SCREWWORM control officials report that there were 628 confirmed screwworm cases in 71 counties of Texas during June. Counties reporting their first screwworm cases in 1974 included Edwards, Reeves, Crane, Upton, Hays, Williamson, San Saba, and Menard. Over all of Texas, there were 628 cases of screwworms reported in June, Bee County leading the list with 55 cases, followed by Kenedy with 51 and Brooks with 48. There were only 145 cases reported in June, 1973 and 15,889 in June, 1972. There have been 1,500 confirmed screwworm cases so far this year in the State.

COTTON FARMERS are waiting for the USDA's first cotton production estimate August 12. It is expected that the 1974 crop will produce less than 13.4 million bales, because the crop reports earlier are believed higher than the number of acres actually planted. In late June, USDA estimated it thinks the 1974-75 cotton supply will be below the 1973-74 supply of 16 million bales. The August 1 carryover is estimated to be 3.5 million bales. On the High Plains, a total of 2,271,000 acres are estimated planted or being planted, and that is 20% below the total in 1973. Total for the entire State is estimated at 5,600,000 acres, compared to 5,400,000 acres in 1973. However, there were only 5,200,000 acres harvested last year.

AND A FEW NOTES: Federal Crop Insurance protection is now available in 87 Texas counties . . . Broiler chicks placed in Texas during the week ending July 6 totaled 3,357,000; and there were 193,000 turkey poults hatched during the same week . . . Drylot sheep feeders had 115,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter July 1.

ENGAGED - Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Willie announce the engagement of their daughter Jeannine to Mr. James Dohnalik, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dohnalik. An August 24 wedding is planned at St. Cyril and Methodius Catholic Church, Marak.

Ceremony Unites Couple

BELTON-Miss Peggy Sue Jones became the bride of Carlos Louis Stewart Sat. evening at the First Presbyterian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lee Jones, of Cameron. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stewart.

The Rev. George Huey of Eddy officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and music was provided by Miss Sean Burton, organist, and Jim Wynne of San Angelo, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza and Venise lace featuring an Isabelle neckline. The flowing skirt extended to a deep ruffle at the hemline which flowed to a long train. The traditional sleeves ended in a point at the wrist. She wore a full-length mantilla which was bordered in matching lace. The veil was caught to a Juliet cap. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations.

Miss Sybil Groth was maid of honor. Matron of Honor was Mrs. John Jones of Cameron. Bridal attendants were Mrs. Tom Jones of Garland, Mrs. Wayne Leatherwood of Temple, Miss Jessica Wilson of Houston, and Mrs. Larry Stewart.

Flower girls were Stephanie Jones of Cameron and Jeanie Jones of Garland. Candlelighters were Eddie Jones brother of the bride and Ricky Jones, both of Cameron; and Larry Leatherwood and Harvey Leatherwood, both of Temple, Ring bearer was Rebel Kyle Jones of Cameron.

Larry Stewart was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Don Sparks of Temple, Steve Crone of Longview. Billy Miller of Dallas, and Mike Collins and Kenneth Henager.

Ushers were Chuck Button, Chris Oujezdsky and Schulyn Huston both of Temple, and Craig Sulak of Rockdale.

The reception after the ceremony was in the fellowship hall of the church. Mrs. Kenneth Henager registered the guests. House party members were Mrs. Jerry Gergory, Mrs. M. A. Groth, Mrs. Earl Crone, and Mrs. Charles Rand of Ft. Worth. Miss Carlene Leatherwood of Temple distributed the rice bags.

The parents of the bridegroom were hosts for the rehearsal dinner Friday evening.

After a wedding trip to South Texas, the couple will live in Belton.

Rogers Native Son To Preach Baptist Revival

Dr. Brian L. Harbour, pastor of the Colonial Heights Baptist Church of Jackson, Miss., and a product of Rogers High School, will preach the summer revival at the First Baptist Church of Rogers the first week of August.

The revival begins Sunday, August 4 with the pastor, Rev. Shelby Jones, preaching that day. Harbour will arrive Monday , August 5, and preach every day through Sunday, August 11.

Coleman Young music director of the church, will have charge of the music program.

Harbour, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Harbour of Rogers, was licensed and ordained to preach by the First BaptistChurch here. This is his first revival to preach in his home church. He graduated from Rogers High School in 1962, from Baylor University in 1966, and received his doctor of philosophy degree from Baylor in August, 1973, with a major in religion and history.

Harbour's first pastorate was at Belfalls Baptist Church in Bell County, east of Troy while a student. He has since been pastor of churches in Waco, Calvert, Atlanta, Georgia, and now Jackson, Miss.

While in high school, Harbour was a four-letterman in sports, lettering in football, basketball, track, and baseball. He made all-district in football, in his senior year. He was president of his senior class in high school, and of the student council.

His wife is the former Janet Sportsman of Kansas City, Missouri, and they have three children: Jay, Collin, and Cara Joy. The family will arrive on Thursday of the revival week and stay the rest of the week.

THE SECRET

In another moment he will be getting up and walking toward you, eager to tell the secret of his calmness and strength. Will you listen?

He has solved many problems, overcome much grief and temptation, been able to meet the conditions of every-day living, all because through the Church he has come in contact with the Source of all power. In the Church he has found companionship. Its worship services have brought faith, peace and serenity. Its activities have furnished an outlet for his creative abilities and energy. The Church has been a part of his life from boyhood. Through its various departments the needs of his life have been met. He has enjoyed the fellowship there and, looking back, he is able to trace his own growth.

Have you learned his secret? Wouldn't you like to know it?

What the Church has done for him it can do for you. If you are young, it will help meet your problems. If you are older, it will bring satisfaction and peace.

Drinking Patterns Reveal Drift Toward Alcoholism

Second in Series

Since alcoholism, in the vast majority of instances, is a progressive disease during which glaring warning signals are set up by the problem drinker's behavior, any abuser of alcohol can personally measure his patterns and determine for himself whether or not he has become a victim of this killer disease. Once an alcoholic has accepted that fact and asked for help, he has a chance to recover.

This article describes some of the warning indications which point toward the fact that the problem drinker is making the transition into the state of an alcoholic. At any stage of alsoholism, even near-fatal conditions, arrest of the disease is possible.

Rare appearance of any of the "symptons" do not mean definite alsoholism, but continued experiences with them almost always do. Probably the most shattering sympton of alsoholism is the "blackout". This practice of "pulling a blank" is not a mere "passing out" experience when the drinker folds up and sleeps it off, usually " like a slob".

The latter is bad enough, but the blackout is capable of creating sheer terror. After a few drinks, the victim, without showing any or little obvious change in behavior, undergoes a total lapse of memory. The drinker in blackout is not outwardly drunk in the common sense of the term. He acts no different from others at a party, but he lives in a coma during a period of time.

Sufferers often "come to" the next morning remembering nothing of the preceding evening and may not even know how they got home. Stories are common of those who rush out to hunt for their cars, to learn if they show crash signs. Weird stories are common of businessmen who have operated successfully for as long as six weeks without later knowing what had been done. If a drinker experiences blackouts, he should know he is courting disaster.

Sneaking drinks is a common behavior of those progressing into alcoholism. This person is clever in his manner of getting refills without being obvious, downing drinks left unattended, parking extra drinks for quick pick-ups or helping the host to mix and serve so that he can sneak extras.

When this type of drinking becomes obvious to his friends and associates, the sneak drinker feels a drop in acceptance by the group and frequently is impelled to get a head start on every party or social gathering by having several drinks before showing up among others. By arriving with a heavy liquor breath, the drinker invariably attracts suspicion, and he often is gradually eliminated from guest lists. This inevitably directs him toward isolation drinking.

Highly significant of the progression of alcoholism is the move to gulping drinks. Sipping and leisurely consumption no longer satifies because such styles cannot give an immediate and potent reward. The imbiber now feels he NEEDS to drink. The quicker it goes down the better. The glow of partial intoxication, with its release from the increasingly painful realities of life, is best achieved by quickly downing liquor, as opposed to the socially approved habit of sipping, which becomes laborious.

These, and other warning signs, worry the drinker, and he becomes constantly reminded that he has developed a problem. He knows he is drinking differently than other people, and the fact embarrasses him and creates feelings of guilt.

He artfully dodges discussions about drinking patterns, even preferences in drinks, for fear his own drinking habits will come into the conversation. He becomes aware friends recognize his problem, are concerned and often discuss it among themselves. But he doesn't want them talking to him about it.

Other signs leading toward an acute state will be covered in the next article.

Meanwhile, readers may get information and aid today if they telephone the Central Texas Council of Alcoholism at 817-773-3722.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Citizen Participation

In the field of community mental health services, citizen participation, the voice of the people, is the essential ingredient for a strong, functioning program that will combat mental illness successfully.

Many can recall how the town meetings of early New England have been called the epitome of the democratic process.

Citizens of the town would meet to debate, decide, and ultimately vote on all governmental activities. Over the years, direct citizen participation in the affairs of government diminished. But recently there has been a healthy and encouraging revival of this kind of interest, with more and more citizens increasingly active in determining the governmental programs in their communities, especially in health and welfare.

Mental health has been a leader in this. Thousands of private citizens are thus now involved in mental health activities all across the country, performing a variety of indispensable duties such as:

- Serving on boards and committees to determine the mental health services needed in their communities.
- Doing volunteer work in hospitals, clinics, and schools.
- Joining voluntary organizations and raising funds.
- Taking part in the meetings of self-help groups.

Mental health was the first activity in the Federal Government to identify citizen participation as a special and discrete program area. Its Citizen Participation Branch, of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, a component of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, is a focal point for developing methods to facilitate consumer participation in mental health programs.

The Branch serves as a resource for information, consultation, and interpretation concerned with effective citizen participation in improving mental health services.

HOME LAWN CARE

by Melvin J. Robey
Turf Consultant to John Deere

How often should I mow my lawn?

The more often a lawn is mowed the better it will appear. The scheduling of mowing cannot be done on a weekly or even a daily routine. It should be determined by the growing rate of your grass. A good rule to follow is not to cut off any more than ½ of the leaf blade at any one mowing.

Should a lawn be mowed at the same height all year?

If you are willing to take the time to adjust your mower, you should cut the grass a little longer in the summer and shorter in the spring and fall. If any area is used for play by children or is under heavy shade, then mow the grass longer than normal. For a formal area in a sunny spot of your yard you can cut it a little shorter for the manicured look.

Does the type of grass have anything to do with the height of cut?

Yes. To maintain a dense turf cover for your conditions mow the grass at the height it will do best. If allowed to grow too long or if cut too short you will not get the expected results you want from the grass.

Seasonal mowing heights for different lawn uses

	Fall & Spring	Summer
Bermudagrass All purposes	½" to ¾"	¾" to 1"
Bentgrass All purposes	½" to 1"	½" to 1"
Bluegrass Formal lawns (appearance)	1"	1½"
General lawns (normal use)	1½"	2"
Minimum care (play area)	2"	2½"

When is the best time to mow a lawn?

The best time to mow a lawn is during the late afternoon or early evening when the grass is dry and the heat and humidity is not too high. The cooler part of the day is easier on the person mowing the lawn and can be a good way to relax after work.

Is it necessary to remove the clippings from my lawn after each mowing?

If heavy, clippings should be removed so the grass is not smothered and to prevent a heavy thatch from developing. If cut more often, it is not necessary to remove the clippings. Normal decay and earthworm activity will dispose of the clippings. Under these circumstances you might want to dethatch your lawn every year or two.

TV Influences Childrens Food

A recent study maintains that TV ads persuade children to ask their parents for sugar - filled, nutritionally empty foods, and this significantly influences family buying-patterns.

The study, entitled "The Effects of Television Advertising on a Child's Eating Habits and Control over the Family Food Purchase," was commissioned by a Massachusettes - based consumer's organization, Action for Childrens Television, and carried out by market researcher Stephen L. Dosson at the University of Pennsylvania's Warton School.

According to the study, "When children exert control over their family food purchase by requesting certain foods, it is usually those products they see advertised on television and usually with a high level of sugar."

The study examined the behavior of 186 nine to thirteen-year-old boys and girls from four Philadelphia public schools. The children came from a variety of social - economic and ethnic backgrounds.

Results of the study were that 95% of the children, all of whom had at least one television in the home, saw the cereal they usually eat advertised on television. Not one child reported wanting the product because of its nutritional content.

Almost 75% of the parents yielded to their children's requests to buy TV-advertised cereals.

The study reported that nearly half of all the students polled associated the word "sweet" with something good in terms of taste and smell.

The study concludes that, "Children are not being nutritionally educated or taught to be wise consumers by the commercials on the air. Instead, they are encouraged to eat "sweet" products which have a very high sugar content and often have questionable or no nutritional value."

Fires In Tents Are Big Danger

Tents are potential death-traps, according to an article in the July issue of TEXAS PARKS & WILDLIFE magazine.

The article, "Danger of Fires in Tents," by Bob Lanier and Sara Bilieu, points out two particularly frightening aspects of the danger -- the alarming speed with which fire spreads and the fact that fire invariably strikes when the camper is least prepared, that is, when he is asleep.

"Once a flame gets going, it may be only a few seconds until the whole structure is totally engulfed in flames," say the authors. "Some tents have increased risk because of features purposely built in for the camper's comfort. As one man put it in reference to his tent waterproofed with paraffin, "I've been sleeping inside one giant candlestick."

According to the authors, tents don't have to be dangerous. Commercial tents for revivals and circuses, for example, have been required by law for about 20 years to be fire resistant.

Unfortunately for the consumer, resistance to flame is not one of the big selling points pushed by camping tent manufacturers.

The authors say that unless a tag on the tent says "Meets flame retardant standard CPAI - 84," a rating by the Canvas Products Association International , the tent is not sufficiently fire retardant.

Especially dangerous, they say, are the cheap, lightweight "play tents," parents buy for their children so they can have a camp-out in the backyard.

According to the authors, tents with very thick, heave gauge canvas are safer than the more convenient thin tents, but they still burn unless they have been specifically designed to retard flame.

They say finding a flame-retardant tent is not an easy matter, and most sporting goods and discount houses won't know what you've talking about if you request one.

The article points out that the production of flame-retardant materials is not easy, since many of the methods used to make other types of cloth flame resistant tents both more costly and hard to find.

According to the authors, there is not way to flame-proof the tents we already own because the waterproofing of the fabric makes it impossible to add satisfactory retardancy.

They offer some commonsense rules to make your camping trip less dangerous:

--If at all possible, buy only tents stating they meet CPAI - 84 standards for flame retardancy. Stress that you as a customer want this protection.

--Never light lanterns or heaters inside a tent.

--Keep all sources of open flame out of the tent.

--Build all fires downwind from the campsite.

--Never use flammable liquids on coals which have "gone out."

--Keep extra gasoline or fuel tanks at a safe distance from camp.

--Never leave children in a tent without proper supervision.

--Clear all tall, dried grass from around the tent area, if possible, to reduce this fire hazard.

P&W Test On Mallards Continues

The last of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's pen-reared mallard ducklings were pushed from the "nest" in late July to round out a program which started back in early June to establish more nesting populations of the waterfowl in Texas.

On July 29, some 1,000 mallards were released on selected sites in south and east Texas.

The birds were purchased by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department from the Frost Game Farm in Wisconsin with a $10,000 check from Pearl Brewing Co. through the Texas Conservation Foundation.

After shipment from Wisconsin, the birds are reared at the department's Management and Research Station in Tyler until three weeks of age.

They have received no special attention or protection after release.

Some of the first ducks to be released in June on the TP&WD's Engeling Wildlife Management Area in Anderson County have been observed flying short distances over the water.

More birds have been sighted on Toledo Bend Reservoir.

"We are encouraged by the program so far," said department wildlife chief Ted Clard. "But the real test will come next spring if the ducks return to the release sites to nest."

CHECKERS

In checkers tournaments players draw from a stock of cards giving fixed, three-move openings, then play out the game from there. Famous openings bear such names as the skull cracker, the white doctor, the Edinburgh, the minotaur, and the octopus.

LOOKING BACK:

Will Tyler Superback Earl Campbell, who headlines the schoolboy All-Star football game this week at the Houston Astrodome, become a star at the University of Texas? Maybe not. But, then Steve Worster, twice All-America Longhorn Fullback, never seemed to have been hurt by just as big a buildup as Earl the Pearl is receiving.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Cotton Robinson, the guy who produced all those Class A State Basketball Championships at Buna, is still there. Only, he's selling life insuance,,, Gene Shannon, University of Houston's first All - America, the 1949 -51 halfback, is Principal at New London ... Speaking at New London: Connie Magouird, the wild-running halfback out of there (In the Late Forties) has been in the news lately. Magouird, New London's first All-Stater who later Full-backed the Texas Aggies, became President of Baytown's potent Citizens National Bank last week.

Remember those stories about Frank Broyles' young sons in his early days at Arkansas? Hank Broyles, now a man, is a Houston Real Estate broker.. Max Alvis, the former slugging Cleveland third-baseman out of U.T.? He's an insurance man in Hometown Jasper..

Whatever happened to James Saxton and Jack Colling, Darrell Royal's 1959 - 61 running duo? Believe it , or not, they have both returned to Austin to work for the same bank. A guy who preceded them to City National is T. Jones, their backfield Coach.

Brownie Wheless, Rice's great offensive lineman, is with a major Houston Accountin firm while one-time Owl defensive gem, Johnny Nichols is , a member of Leon Jaworski's Law Firm.

Remember Charlie Royalty, the great Aggie punt-returner of 1948-50? He's a Dow Engineer at Hometown Freeport ..

Theres's No Rest For The Wicked

A South American missionary wants the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to help him atone for his sins, but the department is powerless.

The missionary recently sent a letter addressed to "Game Warden, San Saba County, Texas," explaining that he had received a citation in 1933 in that county for a deer-hunting offense.

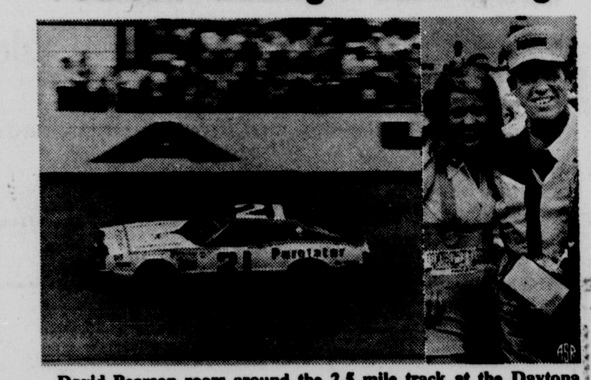
He had managed to get away to where the long arm of the law could not reach him and consequently he never paid the fine. But the deed has weighed heavily on him all these years, and he wants to make restitution.

Unfortunately for the missionary, department records don't go that far back, and the statute of limitations for the offense ran out years ago.

Say department officials, "He'll just have to live with it."

The Lonely Heart

Pearson—Racing's 'Sure Thing'



David Pearson roars around the 2.5 mile track at the Daytona International Speedway on his way to victory in the Firecracker 400 stock car race. This is the third straight year the million-dollar driver has won the event. Afterwards (right), the happy champion is congratulated by Miss Permium, representing one of the race sponsors. At the finish line, Pearson nosed out Richard Petty by only half a car length to take the race. A record crowd of 65,000 watched the action.

If ever there was a "sure thing" in auto racing, it has to be David Pearson. For three consecutive years, the 39-year-old gray fox of racing has taken on all comers and won the Firecracker 400 stock car race at Daytona Beach, Florida.

However, in spite of this remarkable record, winning has not always been easy. This year's race was a duel to the finish between Pearson and veteran driver, Richard Petty—and Pearson needed a "trick" to win.

Going into the final lap of the 160-lap race, Pearson was leading with Petty right on his rear bumper. Pearson suddenly cut the throttle on his car and then, coming off the final turn — and to Petty's dismay — he jammed the throttle to the floor. The Spartanburg, S.C., champion whiplashed to victory by little more than half a car length.

Just as Pearson has been a consistent winner in the Firecracker 400, this is the fourth straight year Petty has had to settle for the second spot. The win gave Pearson $18,100, while Petty collected $10,925. Both drivers are million-dollar career winners.

When the dust cleared, Pearson received congratulations and a "well done" from Miss Permium—representing a race sponsor. A record crowd of 65,000 was on hand for the event.

Johnny Rutherford, winner of this year's Indy 500, spun out and hit a wall in the seventh lap when his engine exploded. He was not injured.

At 138.302 miles per hour, this was the slowest Firecracker 400 on record. Forty-one caution laps — a combination of blown engines, spins and rain kept the pace down.

New Deck Off Bedroom Adds Privacy For Adults

Adding a deck off the master bedroom might seem somewhat selfish, because often it is limited to uses such as morning coffee, or unwinding and relaxing at the end of a busy day.

But just as children need a place of their own, where they can get away from the hustle and bustle of growing up, a bedroom deck can be a private place for overprogrammed parents who sometimes go days without stopping to chat with each other.

One couple opened their second floor bedroom with a window wall and a deck surrounding it. The deck of 2x4-inch Douglas fir laid flat provides a sunny lounging area and shade for the patio below.

Rail Adds Privacy

A waist-high railing of spaced 2x2-inch fir with a 2x4 flat cap affords seclusion for the sitting area, but allows cooling breezes to circulate. Where complete seclusion isn't desired a stairway can be added for access from the yard.

Posts of 4x4-inch fir supporting the deck also can be used for built-in benches on the deck or patio below. When a deck is added off a bedroom or another room at ground level, the beams can be supported directly on concrete piers.

In addition to the pleasures a deck offers, there are other advantages to be enjoyed. A second-floor deck often can be extended as a walkway to connect rooms and to make window washing safer and easier.

Deck Aids Design

Most houses present a pleasant face to the street, but the back elevation often goes blah. A ground level or second floor deck with railings, built-in benches and planters adds design interest.

Western wood 2x4s are the most commonly used material for these additions, with variations in detailing offering distinctiveness for different house styles.

CAMP OUT COOKING

The best idea for outdoor cooking is to keep it simple. Look for shortcuts, convenience foods and substitutes that save time, energy, cooking ware and fuel. Plan ahead and divide your foods into three groups—(1) no special storage, those canned or jar-packed foods impervious to weather or other outdoor hazards such as hungry or curious creatures; (2) protected storage, for such things as bread, crackers, cookies and other dry staples; (3) cold storage foods should be kept to a minimum because of the problems with ice for extended cold storage. Ice chests or insulated bags are satisfactory for short time storage.

Plan and cook only enough for one meal to avoid the fuss of leftovers. Many foods can be cooked without the usual cookware with a little improvisation. Bend a coathanger out to form a circle and cover it with a double layer of heavy duty aluminum foil to serve as a skillet for frying or pan-broiling over a grill. Use a double thickness of heavy duty foil, wrapped drugstore style, to cook individual dinners of meat and vegetables. Be sure all sides are sealed. Use mitts or tongs to carefully turn and remove the packets. Wrap potatoes and other vegetables in foil and bake. A medium-sized potato will take about 50 minutes on the grill and slightly less in the coals. Turn often. Test for doneness by piercing with a fork. Corn on the cob, foil style, takes about 25 minutes on the grill. Slightly thawed or drained canned vegetables in individual packets take only a few minutes on the grill.

Remember to keep your camp or picnic grounds free from litter. To discourage those curious creatures, store food in the car overnight, if possible. If you would like some camping recipes, send me your name and address; I'd love to help! Good luck and good camping!
